Thank you so much for reaching out about this. I can assure you that our office is 100% committed to these same goals, and would be happy to engage with you and your group as we get closer to working on the plantings and other outdoor elements.

In terms of resiliency and efficiency, Supervisor Lusk is very familiar with those elements from his time on the planning commission, and will be sure to push for them as we review the design.

We are still a few years away from opening, but when this item comes before the Lee District Land Use Committee I will make sure that your points are raised.

Best,
Lee District

Supervisor Lusk, as a resident of Kingstowne within your district I am excited to see the plans for the new Lee District Government Center and Kingstowne Library moving forward. The parcel happens to be located in two watersheds, the Accotink Creek watershed through the Long Branch tributary, and the Dogue Creek watershed. As the Primary Conservator of Friends of Accotink Creek, I encourage the County to take the opportunity to showcase the benefits of green infrastructure, native plantings in landscaping, energy efficiency and resiliency planning into the design of this facility.
